Trussway expands into the Midwest with Indiana plant acquisition

HOUSTON – August 4, 2006 - Trussway, Ltd. announced today its expansion into the Midwest market with the acquisition of a multifamily truss plant in Franklin, Ind. The facility will provide quality roof and floor trusses, wall panels, components and openings along with design and engineering services to multifamily builders throughout the Midwest.

“This acquisition follows the Trussway model of supplying our customers wherever they build” said Trussway President and CEO Bill Adams. “We will better serve our growing customer base of multi-family builders and developers in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio, Missouri and Michigan.”

Trussway acquired the facility from Meadors & Associates. This includes an 85,000 square foot plant with state-of-the-art equipment along with production, design and sales personnel. In addition to roof and floor trusses and wall panels, the company will add Trussway Rough Openings to the product mix. TRO’s are factory built window and door openings and components that increase quality and labor efficiency while reducing waste and theft. Trussway plans to add to the workforce as it grows towards its goal of more than doubling the current business volume.

Trussway has become the multifamily market leader in wood trusses and components by providing expert products and services to customers from coast to coast. It recently added a turnkey division called Builder Services Group which provides labor, trusses, lumber and project management in select markets.
